AAEA press policy prohibits the verbatim recording of any concurrent sessions, plenary sessions, or speaker series events.

Members of the press may arrange interviews with meeting attendees individually with those attendees. However, no attendees are authorized to speak on behalf of AAEA, and any information expressed does not necessarily reflect the views, opinions, or positions of AAEA.

When conducting an interview, members of the press must identify the following information for the subject of the interview:

1. The name of the reporter and their associated news organization.
2. What the focus of their story will be.
3. How this interview will be used.

For any questions regarding any policies not explicitly stated here, members of the press should consult AAEA Staff.

I have read and agree to the conditions above.
