2008 Young Professional Teaching Academy (YPTA)

- a. There were 24 attendees at the YPTA this year; they were a good mix of Ph.D. students and new assistant professors
- b. There was one speaker, Dr. Mark Taylor. Due to time and space constraints at the Conference Center, the six hour presentation was squeezed into three hours
- c. Comments suggested that the content was strong, but not tied to implementation in the ag economics classroom well enough
- d. Boland will send a follow-up email to attendees to gauge the interest in a webinar before 2009 AAEA meeting with more content from Dr. Taylor

2009 YPTA

- a. There was concern that the program will not be able to be scheduled on Sunday anymore
- b. A discussion ensued regarding the goals of the YPTA and what would be the best structure to achieve the goals
- c. It was suggested YPTA be held on Wednesday, consider a two-track approach, presenter materials be reviewed,
- d. A motion was made to recognize CSREES for its strong resource support of the YPTA through programming and resources. The resolution reads. "The Teaching, Learning, and Communication section of the American Agricultural Economics Association would like to recognize CSREES for its contribution to the 2008 Young Professionals Teaching Academy. Without their generosity we would not have been able to utilize the services of this year's speaker." Motion passed unanimously.
- e. The name of YPTA was changed to the AAEA Teaching Academy by consensus.

Other business

Bailey Norwood, senior advisor to the Student Section, inquired about having additional interaction between their section and TLC. Membership determined that with the move of YPTA to Wednesday, it would be best to avoid scheduling TLC meetings so as not to conflict with the undergraduate and graduate student sections. A discussion was held about whether dues should be increased or reduced. The overwhelming conclusion was that they remain the same for 2009.

Meeting was adjourned at 3:25 p.m.

Respectfully submitted by Mike Gunderson, Secretary and Treasurer
