Position Description

Angelo State University

Assistant Professor of Agriculture Economics

This is a 100% teaching position.

Teaching duties include undergraduate and graduate agricultural economics courses. The candidate will advise Agribusiness majors, and Agricultural Economics minors. Support for student activities is encouraged. The candidate will coordinate and collaborate with other faculty on undergraduate and graduate (thesis and non-thesis) research, and work cooperatively in a team setting with other faculty in the Department of Agriculture.

Duties

To teach undergraduate and graduate courses in agricultural economics, agribusiness management, marketing, and statistics; farm and ranch management, and land and natural resource economics.

Knowledge, Skills and Abilities: The successful applicant will possess strong communication and organizational skills and a desire to develop innovative learning experiences. Candidates should be dedicated to excellence in teaching, with a strong commitment to high professional standards, both in and outside the classroom.

Qualifications

Ph.D. in Agricultural Economics or a related field is required. A background in Animal Science is preferred. Other considerations include academic merit, leadership ability, effective communication skills, potential to attract extramural funding, and experience with Distance Education and Agricultural Marketing. The applicant must document the ability to function as a successful teacher and develop an independent and collaborative research program.
