WESLEY MUSSER

Wesley Musser is an Extension Specialist and Professor at the University of Maryland. He was raised on a farm in Northeast Nebraska. He received a BS and MS from the University of Nebraska and a Ph.D. from the University of California, Berkeley. Past positions were at the University of Georgia, Oregon State University, and the Pennsylvania State University. He has been President of the Northeastern Association of Agricultural and Resource Economics, Co-editor of the Review of Agricultural and Resource Economics, and Northeast Regional Director of the Extension Section of the American Agricultural Economics Association.

IMPORTANCE OF THE SENIOR SECTION

The Senior Section provides professional and social activities for a group with similar age and experience that allows members to remain active in the AAEEA. The Section also organizes activities that draw on the experience of its members that provide useful professional activities for younger AAEEA members. I believe that being Secretary-Treasurer would allow me to contribute to these functions of the Section.
