

Call for Proposals
Frontier Session

Are you, or someone whose work you admire, working at the frontier and excited to share the work with a great audience? If so, please submit a proposal for a Frontier Session to be presented at the 2014 Minneapolis meeting of the AAEA. A Frontier Session is a 90-minute session (scheduled at the same time as other concurrent sessions) during which a lecture introducing an emerging topic or methodology is presented, with approximately 30 minutes reserved for questions and discussion. Session topics and presenters from the past include:

- “Principal-Agent Theory and Applications to Food and Agriculture” – Ian Sheldon
- “An Introduction to Measure and Probability Theory: A Bridge to the Econometrics Literature” – Alan Kerr
- “Integrating Ecology and Biology with Economics” – Steve Polasky
- “Noncooperative Game Theory” – Rich Sexton

Frontier Session proposals should include: session title, name of the session presenter, a brief description of the session content and plans for stimulating discussion, and a brief justification for the topic as a Frontier Session. Proposals can be submitted by sections or by individual members. A successful proposal by a section will not be counted as part of its track session allocation.

Proposals should be submitted using the online submission system by January 16, 2014 (hyperlink to system). The AAEA President will make the final selection of a proposal. Notification on the status of proposals will be sent by early February.
